Littleton High

Littleton, Ma.

"I love you,"
said a great mother.
"I love you for what you are knowing so well
what you are."

"And I love you
more yet, child, deeper yet than
ever, child,
for what you are going to be,

Knowing so well
you are going far knowing your great works are ahead ahead and beyond yonder and far over yet."

— Carl Sandburg

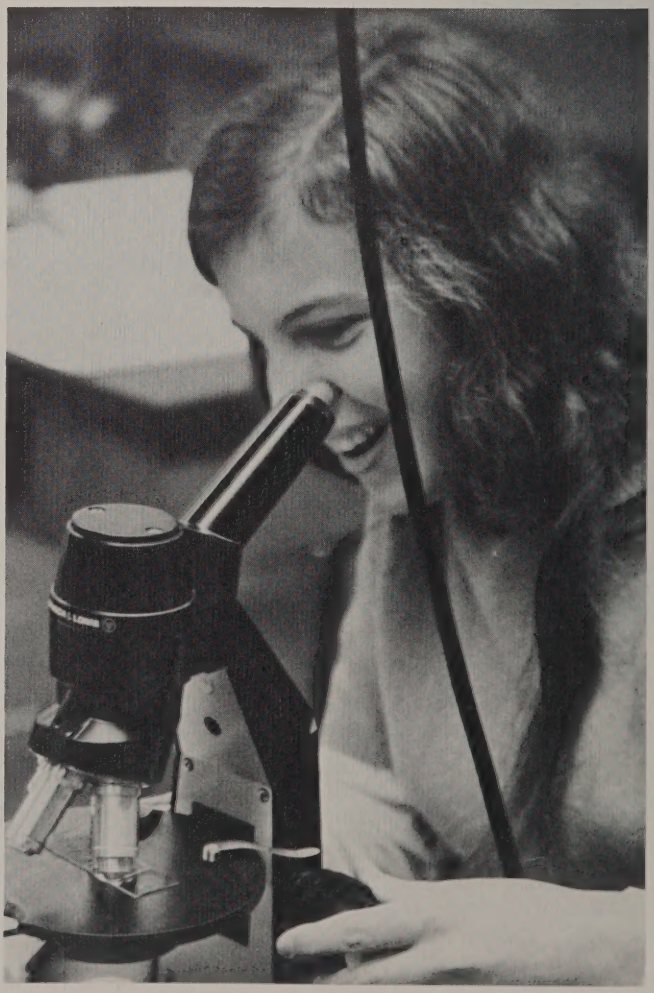
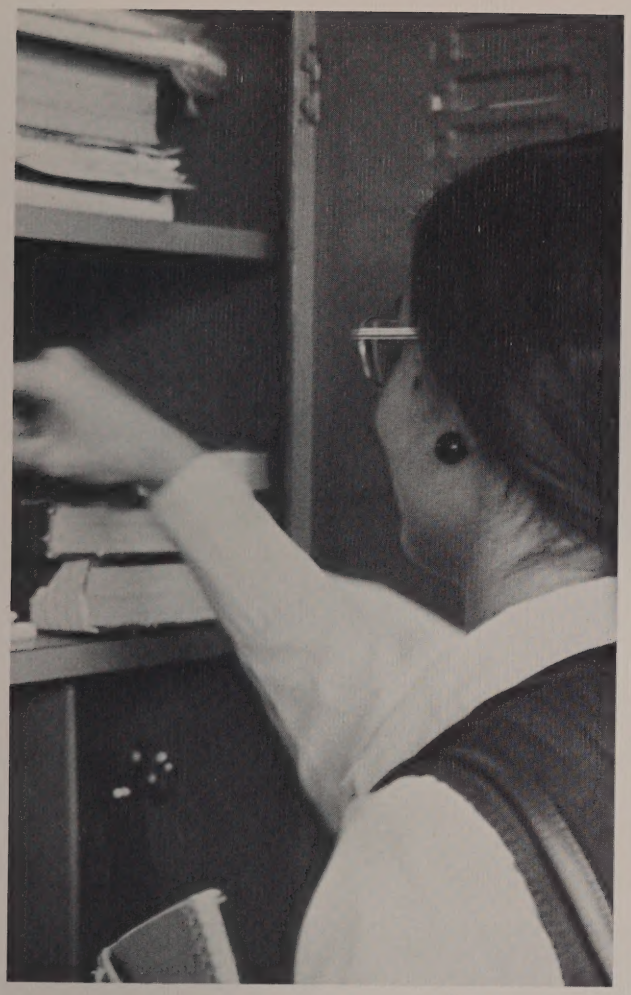
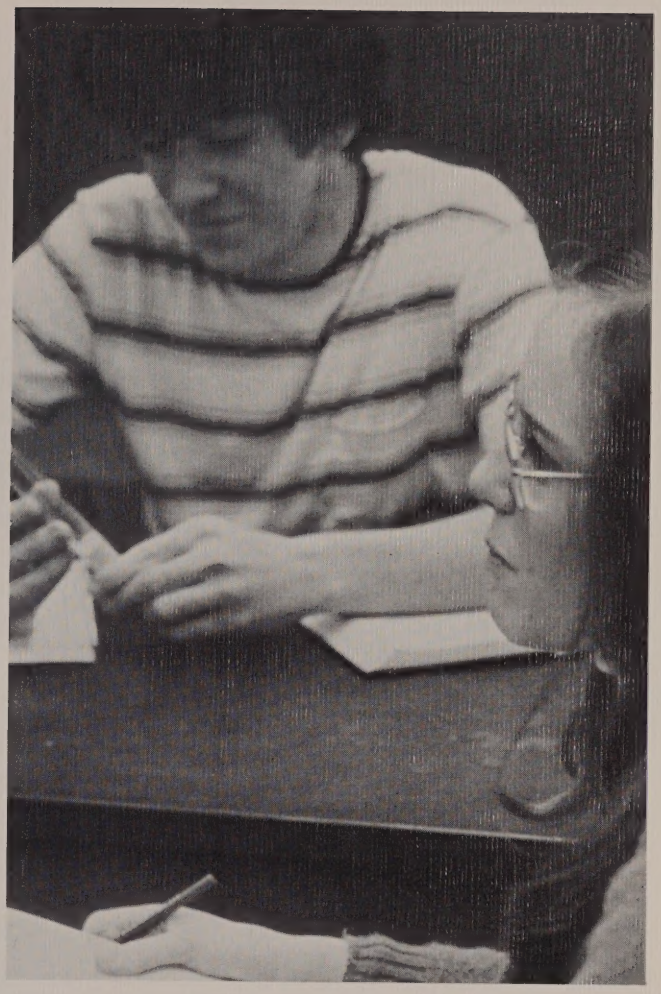
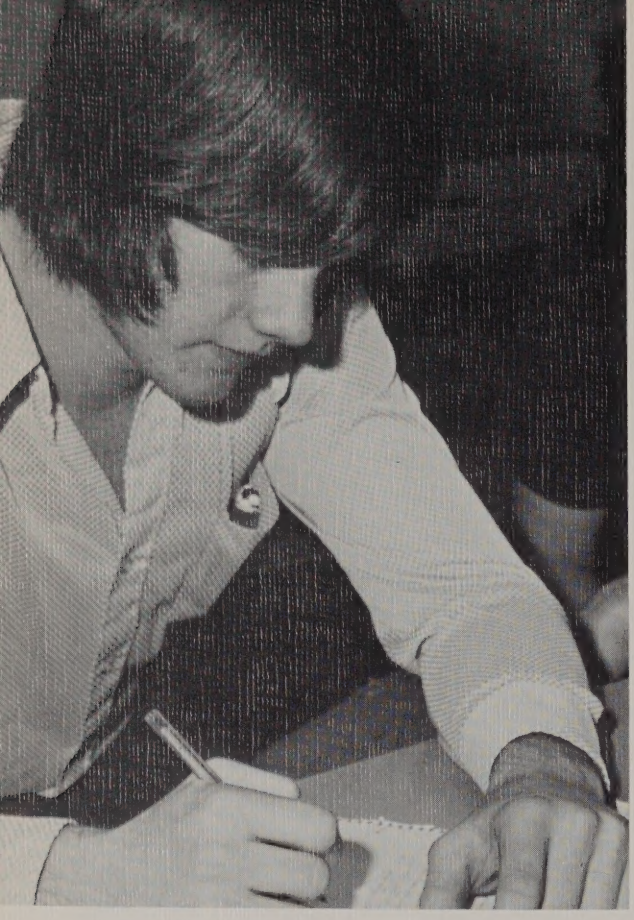
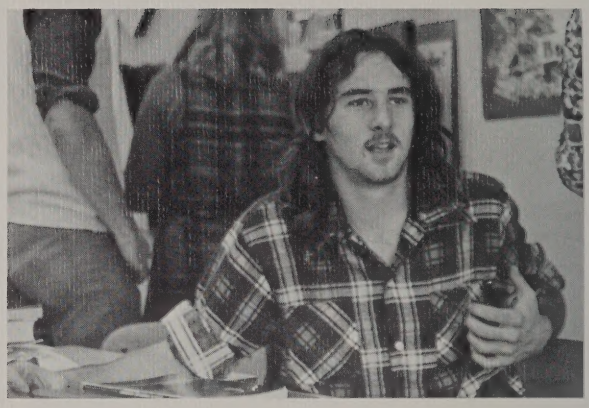
A Day in the Life . . .

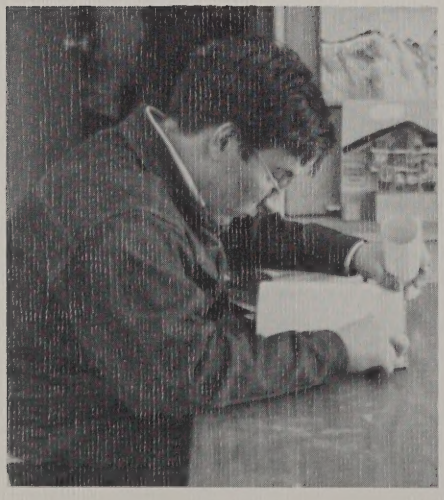












SNOW
is a four letter word

Two Loves

Out to the city
To meet the farmers of my youth.

Young and shaggy
Jeans bedraggled
Don't look nothing like my friends in the country.

They gotta imitate the rugged life so hard,
But with the drugs intercoursed.

And there ain't even the slightest echo of light in their eyes.

Yet they're my people and pull me strongly I'm a child of two loves right in between.
Torn between the torness of the rock and roll generation and the wholeness of the "backward" people.

I know I detest the shorts, halters, and drip hair.
And prefer the simple yet graceful garments of the country folk.

And yet I am pulled strongly to my city "folkies."
It's a strange, strange thing for me.

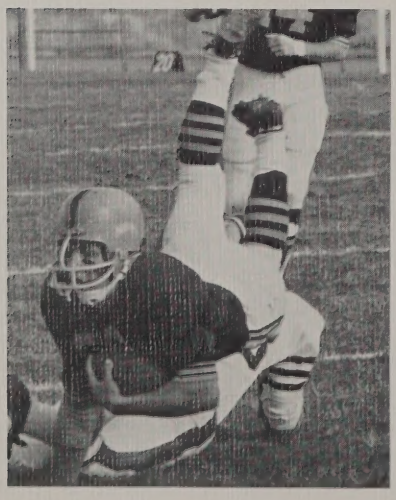
The Tigers spring onto the field of combat!!

The coaches are confident!

The game begins!



Trouble begins!

and continues

and compounds!!

The coaches are still confident!

The cheerleaders are frantic!

The fans are frantic!

But the Tigers finally pull it out!!!

The child lay between the two Criss crossing between their lives
First he was just their joy
And their hearts remained their own
And then he grew, and as he grew
He became their hearts,
And then he went away.
